PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. Petitioners bring this action to challenge New York's congressional district map, SB S8653A, codified at New York State Law §§ 110-112 (McKinney 2024) (the "2024 Congressional Map"). Black and Latino Staten Islanders have less opportunity than other members of the electorate to elect a representative of their choice and influence elections in New York's 11th Congressional District ("CD-11"), in violation of the prohibition against racial vote dilution in Article III, Section 4(c)(1) of the New York Constitution.

2. While the enactment of the 2024 Congressional Map remedied the procedural defects of the map drawn immediately following the 2020 decennial census, it still perpetuates a fatal substantive defect: it dilutes Black and Latino voting strength in CD-11.

3. Staten Island's Black and Latino populations have increased significantly over the last several decades. From 1980 to 2020, the combined Black and Latino population on the Island climbed from approximately 11% to nearly 30%. During the same period, the Island's white

This is a copy of a pleading filed electronically pursuant to New York State court rules (22 NYCRR §202.5-b(d)(3)(i)) which, at the time of its printout from the court system's electronic website, had not yet been reviewed and approved by the County Clerk. population dropped from 85% to 56%, meaning racial minorities have been a significant driver of Staten Island's population growth in recent years.

4. However, the current configuration of CD-11 does not account for these demographic changes or modern communities of interest. CD-11's antiquated boundaries instead confine Staten Island's growing Black and Latino communities in a district where they are routinely and systematically unable to influence elections for their representative of choice, despite the existence of strong racially polarized voting and a history of racial discrimination and segregation on Staten Island. Instead of reflecting the demographic changes, the 2024 Congressional Map ensures that the growth of CD-11's Black and Latino populations will not translate to increased political influence at the federal level. This configuration stands in stark contrast to the current New York State Assembly map, which links communities of interest in Staten Island's North Shore and southern Manhattan.

5. The 2024 Congressional Map fails entirely to account for a long history of discrimination facing Black and Latino residents of Staten Island. Staten Island is one of the most segregated parts of New York, with the vast majority of Black and Latino residents confined to the Island's North Shore while white residents occupy the more affluent South Shore. That segregation has consequences: Black and Latino voters generally live in areas where Black and Latino residents make up a significant majority, and many of those neighborhoods have significant populations that are classified as low-to-moderate income.

6. In 2014, New York voters approved constitutional amendments (the "Redistricting Amendments") that expressly prohibit race discrimination and racial vote dilution in voting in state assembly, senate, and congressional elections. In particular, Article III, Section 4(c)(1) provides that: "districts shall not be drawn to have the purpose of, nor shall they result in, the denial or abridgement" of minority voting rights. N.Y. Const. art. III, § 4(c)(1). Further, "[d]istricts shall be drawn so that, based on the totality of the circumstances, racial or minority language groups do not have less opportunity to participate in the political process than other members of the electorate and to elect representatives of their choice." Id.

7. In 2022, the New York Legislature passed new legislation that extended the Constitution's prohibition on voter suppression and vote dilution to local political subdivisions—the John R. Lewis Voting Rights Act of New York (the "NY VRA"). See N.Y. Elec. Law § 17-200. The language of the NY VRA mirrors the language of the constitutional prohibition against vote dilution in Article III, Section 4(c)(1): it provides that "[n]o voting qualification, prerequisite to voting, law, ordinance, standard, practice, procedure, regulation, or policy shall be enacted or implemented by any board of elections or political subdivision in a manner that results in a denial or abridgment of the right of members of a protected class to vote." Id. § 17-206(1)(a). Further, "[n]o board of elections or political subdivision shall use any method of election, having the effect of impairing the ability of members of a protected class to elect candidates of their choice or influence the outcomes of elections, as a result of vote dilution." Id. § 17-206(2)(a).

8. Through these enactments, New York has become a national leader in protecting voting rights, heeding the Supreme Court's guidance that states are free to go above and beyond the minimum requirements of the federal Voting Rights Act to safeguard their citizens' rights to exercise the franchise. Bartlett v. Strickland, 556 U.S. 1, 23 (2009) (plurality op.). And by protecting influence, or "cross-over" districts, New York's Constitution advances the goal of "diminish[ing] the significance and influence of race by encouraging minority and majority voters to work together toward a common goal." Id.

9. Together, Article III, Section 4(c)(1) and the NY VRA reflect New Yorkers'

This is a copy of a pleading filed electronically pursuant to New York State court rules (22 NYCRR §202.5-b(d)(3)(i)) which, at the time of its printout from the court system's electronic website, had not yet been reviewed and approved by the County Clerk. Because court rules (22 NYCRR §202.5[d]) authorize the County Clerk to reject filings for various reasons, readers should be aware that documents bearing this legend may not have been accepted for filing by the County Clerk.

commitment to safeguarding the right to vote for the state's minority populations by prohibiting vote dilution in redistricting across all maps used in the State of New York, at each level of government. These provisions work in tandem to ensure that there are consistent, robust protections for New York's minority voters across local, state, and federal elections.

10. The NY VRA thus informs the scope of the constitutional protections against minority vote dilution. The NY VRA protects coalition and minority influence districts, or districts where racial minorities do not form a numerical majority but can form coalitions with other racial minorities and white voters to influence elections and elect their representatives of choice. N.Y. Elec. Law § 17-206(2)(c)(iv).

11. The NY VRA also provides detailed standards outlining how voters can prove a racial vote dilution claim: they must show that candidates preferred by members of the protected classes would usually be defeated and either (a) voting is racially polarized in the political subdivision, or (b) under the totality of the circumstances, the ability of the protected classes, individually and collectively, to elect candidates of their choice or influence the outcome of elections is impaired. Id. § 17-206(2)(b)(ii). The law provides a non-exhaustive list of factors ("totality of the circumstances factors") that a court may consider in its assessment. Id. § 17-206(3).

12. Consistent with these standards, had Respondents complied with Article III, Section 4(c)(1)'s prohibition against racial vote dilution, they would have constructed CD-11 as a minority influence district in which Black and Latino voters on Staten Island could combine with diverse communities of interest in lower Manhattan to elect their candidate of choice. Given the presence of racially polarized voting on Staten Island and the persistence of many of the totality of the circumstances factors, Respondents' failure to create such a district violates Article III, Section 4(c)(1) of the New York Constitution.

Because court rules (22 NYCRR §202.5[d]) authorize the County Clerk to reject filings for various reasons, readers should be aware that documents bearing this legend may not have been accepted for filing by the County Clerk.

13. Accordingly, Petitioners seek an order (i) declaring that the 2024 Congressional Map violates Article III, Section 4(c)(1) of the New York Constitution; (ii) permanently enjoining Respondents from using the 2024 Congressional Map in any future elections; (iii) ordering the Legislature to create a minority influence district that pairs Staten Island with lower Manhattan, thereby providing Black and Latino Staten Islanders with an opportunity to elect a representative of their choice in CD-11; and (iv) providing any such additional relief as is appropriate.

PARTIES

14. Petitioners are citizens of the United States and registered to vote in New York.

15. Petitioner Michael Williams is a Black registered voter in Staten Island, New York. He resides in CD-11. He could reside in a properly constructed remedial district that complies with traditional redistricting criteria and allows Mr. Williams and other minority voters to have an opportunity to influence elections and elect their representative of choice.

16. Petitioner José Ramírez-Garofalo is a Latino registered voter in Staten Island, New York. He resides in CD-11. He could reside in a properly constructed remedial district that complies with traditional redistricting criteria and allows Mr. Ramírez-Garofalo and other minority voters to have an opportunity to influence elections and elect their representative of choice.

17. Petitioner Aixa Torres is a Latina registered voter in Manhattan, New York in CD-10. She could reside in a properly constructed remedial district that complies with traditional redistricting criteria and allows Ms. Torres to form a coalition with other minority voters in CD-11 to have an opportunity to influence elections and elect their representative of choice.

18. Petitioner Melissa Carty is a white registered voter in Manhattan, New York in CD-10. She could reside in a properly constructed remedial district that complies with traditional redistricting criteria and allows Ms. Carty to form a coalition with minority voters in a district that allows them an opportunity to influence elections and elect their representative of choice.

19. Respondent Board of Elections of the State of New York is an Executive Department agency with the authority and responsibility for administration and enforcement of the election laws of the State of New York.

20. Respondent Kristen Zebrowski Stavisky is sued in her official capacity as Co-Executive Director of the Board of Elections of the State of New York.

21. Respondent Raymond J. Riley, III is sued in his official capacity as Co-Executive Director of the Board of Elections of the State of New York.

22. Respondent Peter S. Kosinski is sued in his official capacity as Co-Chair and Commissioner of the Board of Elections of the State of New York.

23. Respondent Henry T. Berger is sued in his official capacity as Co-Chair and Commissioner of the Board of Elections of the State of New York.

24. Respondent Anthony J. Casale is sued in his official capacity as Commissioner of the Board of Elections of the State of New York.

25. Respondent Essma Bagnuola is sued in her official capacity as Commissioner of the Board of Elections of the State of New York.

26. Respondent Kathy Hochul is sued in her official capacity as Governor of New York.

27. Respondent Andrea Stewart-Cousins is sued in her official capacity as New York State Senate Majority Leader and President Pro Tempore of the Senate.

28. Respondent Carl E. Heastie is sued in his official capacity as the Speaker of the New York State Assembly.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

30. This Court has jurisdiction over this action pursuant to Article III, Section 5 of the New York Constitution, Unconsolidated Laws § 4221, and New York Civil Practice Law and Rules 3001.

31. Article III, Section 5 provides that "[a]n apportionment by the legislature, or other body, shall be subject to review by the supreme court, at the suit of any citizen, under such reasonable regulations as the legislature may prescribe." N.Y. Const. art. III, § 5.

32. Unconsolidated Laws § 4221 provides that "[a]n apportionment by the legislature shall be subject to review at the suit of any citizen, upon the petition of any citizen to the supreme court" in the designated county for the "judicial department where at least one petitioner resides." N.Y. Unconsol. Law § 4221. These include New York County for the first judicial department; Westchester County for the second judicial department; Albany County for the third judicial department; or Erie County for the fourth judicial department. Id.; see also id. § 4225 ("No limitation of the time for commencing an action shall affect any proceeding hereinbefore mentioned . . . .").

33. Venue is proper in New York County because this petition challenges "[a]n apportionment by the legislature" and two petitioners, Aixa Torres and Melissa Carty, reside in the first judicial department. See N.Y. Unconsol. Law § 4221(a); see also N.Y. Const. art. III, § 5.

34. Venue is also proper in New York County because Petitioners Aixa Torres and Melissa Carty reside in New York County. See N.Y. C.P.L.R. 503(a).

35. Under Section 5 of Article III of the New York Constitution, this action shall be given precedence over all other causes and proceedings, and this Court shall render its decision within sixty days after the date of filing of this petition. N.Y. Const. art. III, § 5.

LEGAL BACKGROUND

I. In 2014, New York voters amended the Constitution to explicitly prohibit racial vote dilution in redistricting.

36. In 2014, New York voters approved constitutional amendments to reform the congressional and state legislative redistricting processes.

37. Not only did the Redistricting Amendments alter many aspects of the map-drawing procedure and approval process, they also made "historic changes" that "guarantee[] the application of substantive criteria that protect minority voting rights." See Assembly Mem. In Support, 2013 N.Y. Senate-Assembly Concurrent Resolution S2107, A2086.

38. In particular, the Redistricting Amendments prohibit racial vote dilution in redistricting. N.Y. Const. art. III, § 4(c)(1). Article III, Section 4(c)(1) states that "districts shall not be drawn to have the purpose of, nor shall they result in, the denial or abridgement" of minority voting rights. Further, "[d]istricts shall be drawn so that, based on the totality of the circumstances, racial or minority language groups do not have less opportunity to participate in the political process than other members of the electorate and to elect representatives of their choice." Id. The Redistricting Amendments specifically apply to New York's state assembly, senate, and congressional districts. Id. § 4(b).

39. No court has yet ruled on the substantive standards applicable to a constitutional vote dilution claim in the context of redistricting. This case thus presents the first opportunity for a court to interpret this important provision and the applicable legal standard.

This is a copy of a pleading filed electronically pursuant to New York State court rules (22 NYCRR §202.5-b(d)(3)(i)) which, at the time of its printout from the court system's electronic website, had not yet been reviewed and approved by the County Clerk. Because court rules (22 NYCRR §202.5[d]) authorize the County Clerk to reject filings for various reasons, readers should be aware that documents bearing this legend may not have been accepted for filing by the County Clerk.

II. The New York Legislature subsequently passed the New York Voting Rights Act, which provides expansive protections for minority voting rights and detailed standards for proving racial vote dilution.

40. In 2022, the Legislature passed the NY VRA, which codified detailed standards for proving racial vote dilution and contains similar language as the relevant constitutional provisions. Several courts have interpreted the application of the NY VRA in the context of redistricting litigation and vote dilution. See Clarke v. Town of Newburgh, 237 A.D.3d 14, 26 (2d Dept. 2025) (explaining that the NY VRA "permits 'influence' claims, and does not require . . . that the minority group must be sufficiently large and geographically compact to constitute a majority in a reasonably configured district"); Coads v. Nassau County, 86 Misc.3d 627, 652 (Sur. Ct., Nassau County 2024) (noting that the NY VRA "addresses influence districts"); Serratto v. Town of Mount Pleasant, 86 Misc.3d 1167, 1172–74 (Sur. Ct., Westchester County 2025) (holding that genuine issues of material fact precluded summary judgment as to Hispanic voters' claim that town's at-large election system impaired Hispanic voters' ability to influence outcome of town elections).

41. Like Article III, Section 4(c)(1), the NY VRA's protection against vote dilution is expansive. The purpose of the NY VRA is to "[e]nsure that eligible voters who are members of racial, color, and language-minority groups shall have an equal opportunity to participate in the political processes of the state of New York." N.Y. Elec. Law § 17-200. The law further provides that "all statutes, rules and regulations . . . shall be construed liberally in favor of . . . ensuring voters of race, color, and language-minority groups have equitable access to fully participate in the electoral process in registering to vote and voting." Id. § 17-202. The NY VRA specifically prohibits "method[s] of election" that have "the effect of impairing the ability of members of a protected class to elect candidates of their choice or influence the outcome of elections, as a result of vote dilution." Id. § 17-206(2)(a).

This is a copy of a pleading filed electronically pursuant to New York State court rules (22 NYCRR §202.5-b(d)(3)(i)) which, at the time of its printout from the court system's electronic website, had not yet been reviewed and approved by the County Clerk. Because court rules (22 NYCRR §202.5[d]) authorize the County Clerk to reject filings for various reasons, readers should be aware that documents bearing this legend may not have been accepted for filing by the County Clerk.

42. Vote dilution can be established by showing "that candidates . . . preferred by members of the protected class would usually be defeated and either: (A) voting patterns of members of the protected class within the political subdivision are racially polarized; or (B) under the totality of the circumstances, the ability of members of the protected class to elect candidates of their choice or influence the outcome of elections is impaired." Id. (emphasis added).

43. Racially polarized voting occurs when "there is a divergence in the candidate, political preferences, or electoral choice of members in a protected class from the candidates, or electoral choice of the rest of the electorate." Id. § 17-204(6). Black and Latino voters are considered members of a protected class. Id. § 17-204(5).

44. In determining whether, under the totality of the circumstances, vote dilution has occurred, the factors that may be considered shall include, but not be limited to:

(a) the history of discrimination in or affecting the political subdivision;

(b) the extent to which members of the protected class have been elected to office in the political subdivision;

(c) the use of any voting qualification, prerequisite to voting, law, ordinance, standard, practice, procedure, regulation, or policy that may enhance the dilutive effects of the election scheme;

(d) denying eligible voters or candidates who are members of the protected class [access] to processes determining which groups of candidates receive access to the ballot, financial support, or other support in a given election;

(e) the extent to which members of the protected class contribute to political campaigns at lower rates;

(f) the extent to which members of a protected class in the state or political subdivision

> (g) the extent to which members of the protected class are disadvantaged in areas including but not limited to education, employment, health, criminal justice, housing, land use, or environmental protection;
> (h) the extent to which members of the protected class are disadvantaged in other areas which may hinder their ability to participate effectively in the political process;
> (i) the use of overt or subtle racial appeals in political campaigns;
> (j) a significant lack of responsiveness on the part of elected officials to the particularized needs of members of the protected class; and
> (k) whether the political subdivision has a compelling policy justification that is substantiated and supported by evidence for adopting or maintaining the method of election or the voting qualification, prerequisite to voting, law, ordinance, standard, practice, procedure, regulation, or policy.

Id. § 17-206(3).

45. The NY VRA sweeps more broadly than federal law. The NY VRA requires proof only of racially polarized voting or a showing that the totality of the circumstances factors have been met. Id. § 17-206(2)(b)(ii).

46. In addition, the NY VRA does not require the plaintiff to show that a district could have been drawn that would have a majority of residents of a single protected class. A plaintiff need only show that the current district map is responsible for the protected class's lack of electoral influence based on the existence of racially polarized voting or the totality of the circumstances. In other words, "the NY VRA specifically allows for remedies that might allow for minorities to elect their candidates of choice or influence the outcome of elections without their constituting a majority in a single-member district." Clarke, 237 A.D.3d at 38; see N.Y. Elec. Law § 17-206(c) (explaining, for the purpose of demonstrating that unlawful vote dilution has occurred, "where there is evidence that more than one protected class of eligible voters are politically cohesive in the political subdivision, members of each of those protected classes may be combined"); id. § 17-206(2)(a) ("No board of elections or political subdivision shall use any method of election, having the effect of impairing the ability of members of a protected class to elect candidates of their choice or influence the outcome of elections, as a result of vote dilution."). Thus, under certain circumstances, the NY VRA requires the creation of coalition and minority influence districts, or districts in which racial minorities can form coalitions with other racial minorities and white voters to influence elections and elect their representatives of choice.

Because court rules (22 NYCRR §202.5[d]) authorize the County Clerk to reject filings for various reasons, readers should be aware that documents bearing this legend may not have been accepted for filing by the County Clerk.

47. By passing the 2014 Redistricting Amendments and enacting the NY VRA, the voters of New York and the New York Legislature made the choice to go beyond the scope of the federal Voting Rights Act and protect coalition and crossover districts. See Bartlett, 556 U.S. at 23 (observing that Section 2 "allows States to choose their own method of complying with the Voting Rights Act, and we have said that may include drawing crossover districts").

III. The vote dilution prohibitions in the NY Constitution and NY VRA are similar, and the same standards should apply.

48. Although the language of the constitutional prohibition on minority vote dilution is expansive, no court has yet ruled on what precisely constitutes impermissible vote dilution under that provision. This case thus presents an issue of first impression for New York courts.

49. Even so, New York courts have suggested that Article III, § 4(c)(1), like the NY VRA, is more protective of minority voting rights than federal law. See Harkenrider v. Hochul, 173 N.Y.S. 3d 109, 112 (Sur. Ct., Steuben County 2022) ("The prohibition against discriminating
