Counsel for Interveners-Respondents

Intervenors-Respondents join in the Commission's unopposed request that the Commission be allotted five additional minutes for oral argument. As the Commission notes in its motion, the Commission's interests are not aligned with, and in fact are adverse to, the interests of Intervenors-Respondents. Allowing the Commission a separate five minute allotment for argument will ensure that the only party supporting the validity of the Commission's rule is given a complete opportunity to present argument and respond to the Court's questions.

If the Court is disinclined to allow the Commission an additional five minutes of time for oral argument, the Court should require the Commission to share time with Petitioners rather than Intervenors-Respondents since both the Petitioners and the Commission assert that the Commission's rule is invalid.

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Jeremy K. Harrison
